Irresistible Scotch Beef Roasting Joints

There's nothing quite like roast beef, and you can't beat the taste of properly hung Scotch Beef, prepared by traditional Scottish butchers. All of our Scotch Beef products have full traceability back to the farm of their origin, and come from farms which meet Quality Meat Scotland assurance standards.

Our own highest standard of Scotch Beef, Campbells Gold, is registered under the Scottish Government's Beef Labelling Scheme. Only cattle born and raised naturally and predominantly grass fed in Scotland are used for Campbells Gold Beef. Our venison is from wild red deer from Scottish estates, which have grazed freely on a mixed diet giving it a wonderfully woody, almost fruity flavour. Wild venison is lean and high in protein, iron and omega N-3 fatty acids – so a healthy and delicious choice. We also supply grouse, pheasant and quail. “Great produce is the cornerstone of my food philosophy and I find the freshness and quality of Campbells fish outstanding and their traditionally butchered meats are second to none.”

Nick Nairn on why he chooses fresh meat and fish from Campbells.

The most important factors in cooking for me are great produce, a good technique and perfect harmony. Great quality produce means you can create great quality meals. The meat and fish that Campbells supplies to my Cook Schools and restaurants is Scotland’s best, be it Aberdeen Angus beef, fish straight off the boats up at Scrabster, or game and seafood from Scotland’s hillsides and coasts and free-range poultry from the best farms.
